

ABSTRACT

- Techniques for comparing sets of configuration information for data forwarding devices, such as routers, are disclosed. Scoping may be used to limit
- 5 comparisons to particular hierarchical levels and/or categories of sets of configuration information. Different users may have different permissions regarding viewing, or editing different parts of configuration information.